

PROVIDING INFORMATION TO FACILITATE TELEPHONE CONVERSATIONS

Abstract of the Disclosure

A processor-based device automatically accesses a telephone number of a second party during an ongoing
5 telephone call to retrieve and display extended data about the second party. In one embodiment, if this extended data is not available on a first database, the device may automatically initiate a search for the extended data on databases external to the device.